DATE SET FOR SEBASTOPOL'S GRAVENSTEIN APPLE SHOW

The directors of the Gravenstein Apple Show Association, of Sebastopol, decided at a meeting held this week to open this year's apple show on Monday night, August 18, and close on Saturday night, August 25. Arrangements for the big show are progressing in a most satisfactory manner and when the unique plans that the exhibitors are now working out in their minds are finally woven into a comperhensive reality, there can be but one result—an apple show unequaled.

Sebastopol Parlor of Native Sons has decided to go after the first feature exhibit prize. The Natives have never made an exhibit at any of the previous apple shows, but they know how great an effort will have to be made in a race for the capital prize. They claim to hold a trump card, but at present they are not saying much about the design that they have in mind.

This year's prize list will be the largest ever offered, including many substantial cash premiums and hundreds of dollars in merchandise orders, to say nothing of the silver cups, medals and diplomas.

The directors have contracted with Foley & Burke to furnish amusements during the week, which is a guarantee that nothing will be overlooked in the canrival line.
